Like businesses, municipalities are doing more with less.

Prosecutors, law directors, solicitors and other governmental officials have smaller staffs and fewer resources to handle their ever-increasing legal workload.

To bridge this gap effectively, Ohio municipalities of every size are looking for a law firm that does more than recite legal code or react with ad hoc solutions.

They're looking for a dynamic legal partner that understands a municipality's unique needs. One that anticipates and assesses, one that provides tailored creative solutions that truly serve the legal needs of the community-at-large.

That firm is Wiles, Boyle, Burkholder & Bringardner.

Trusted generalists, superb specialists

Our expertise and experience allow us to work effectively in both general and specialty roles. We can serve in a law director, solicitor or prosecutor capacity. Our attorneys also can work as consultants or special counsel in areas such as:

- Economic Development
- Zoning and Land Use
- Drafting and Enforcing Ordinances
- Public Records and Open Meetings
- Chapter 2506 Appeals
- JEDD's, CEDA's and TIF's
- Police Liability
- Section 1983 Litigation
- Tort Liability and Chapter 2744 Immunity

In touch, on budget

We take pride in working directly with law enforcement, elected and appointed officials, prosecutors, zoning administrators and other staff. And regardless of the scope of work, we complete projects on time and on budget without over-staffing or performing unnecessary legal work.

Years of local knowledge

We have more than forty years of experience doing the legal work of communities of every size. We understand the challenges they face. Some of the fastest growing municipalities in Ohio – and some of the most economically challenged – trust Wiles Boyle.

The benefits of experience

Because municipalities often face similar issues, we can provide valuable insight and deliver faster solutions at a lower cost. We are privileged to serve a number of communities, and each benefit from the opportunity to share resources on common issues.
